Students on stage at Sadler's Wells for dance show finale

SCHOOLCHILDREN from South Tottenham performed centre stage at Sadler's Wells, the world renowned theatre of international dance.

Pupils from Gladesmore Community School, in Crowland Road, were participating in the finale of DanceQuest a national project designed by The Prince's Foundation for Children & the Arts and supported by the MariaMarina Foundation and the J Paul Getty Junior Charitable Trust.

The dance education project introduces children and young people to the joys of dance and aims to improve children's fitness, dance skills, communication skills, teamwork and confidence.

The pupils had the thrill of seeing two high-quality, large-scale live dance productions at Sadler's Wells, in Clerkenwell, as well as getting to work with professional dancers in six workshops before choreographing their own dance.

They then performed in the finale before families, teachers and friends.

Gladesmore's assistant headteacher Sonia Bardouille said: "I am really proud that our students have been involved in DanceQuest.

"Working with professional dancers and seeing and being involved in live performance has really opened their eyes to the many different possibilities that dance can offer.

"Our students have not only developed their dancing ability they have also grown in confidence and really believe that they can do whatever they set their minds to.

"The DanceQuest journey has been an exciting, challenging and incredibly engaging one."

Primary places boost

TWO primary schools are to be expanded to ease the severe shortage of places in the borough.

Haringey Council has approved plans for new classrooms, a studio and food technology area to be built at St Mary's, in Rectory Gardens, Hornsey, along with additional study rooms and more funding for children with educational needs.

Also given the go-ahead were proposals for additional classrooms and study spaces to support teaching and learning at Bounds Green Infant and Junior Schools, in Bounds Green Road, as well as a newly-landscaped playground and improved access, plus new ground-floor toilets.

Extra places are to be offered at both schools by increasing the intake in every year group starting in September and in September 2016.

Scuffles in high road

POLICE intervened in scuffles in High Road, Wood Green, on Saturday afternoon.

The flashpoint happened as a procession by Kurds celebrating Newroz, the traditional Iranian new year, passed an information stall at which sharia law was being promoted and leaflets urging Muslims not to vote in the general election were being handed out.

No arrests were made, said a police spokesman.

NEW CAMPAIGN TO STOP CHILD ABUSE

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS who fear a youngster may be at risk of sexual abuse are being urged not to turn a blind eye and report their suspicions as part of a new campaign to raise awareness in Haringey of child exploitation.

Individuals and businesses are being encouraged to be vigilant and spot the warning signs as part of a joint initiative between Haringey Council, the police and the borough's Local Safeguarding Children's Board.

Specialist training to identify the tell-tale signs is to be offered to staff in takeaways, restaurants, hotels, pubs and clubs as well as to cab drivers, bus drivers and those working in leisure centres and gyms. They are in the frontline of those who witness on a daily basis scenarios in which a youngster could be at risk.

The council and police are also working with teachers and community leaders to highlight the issue and agree on action to be taken should they suspect a child is facing harm.

Potential signs of child exploitation which the public are being encouraged to look out for include:

□ Adults who appear secretive or are trying to hide the fact they are with a young person

□ Adults befriending young people, including buying them food or drinks

□ Young people being picked up and taken to hotels, particularly at odd times of the day and night

□ Adults who frequently visit premises with different young people

□ Young people who look uncomfortable or under duress

"Tackling child sexual exploitation requires real cooperation and collaboration between professionals and the public to keep Haringey's young people safe," said Councillor Ann Waters, cabinet member for children and families.

"This campaign will help raise awareness among local residents and businesses of the potential signs of abuse and encourage people to raise any concerns they may have."

Detective Inspector Sharon Freeman-Woods, of Haringey CID, said that a common feature of child sexual exploitation (CSE) was that a child or young person did not recognise the coercive nature of a relationship and did not see themselves as a victim of sexual exploitation.

As a result they were unlikely to report abuse, meaning the issue remained seriously under-reported.

"CSE is a hidden crime and this initiative will help us raise awareness within a vital group – those who witness all manner of scenarios on a daily basis," she said. "We all have a responsibility to keep our children and young people safe from harm and getting the local business sector on board as well as the assistance of the public will help in the prevention, detection and safeguarding of those at risk." People are encouraged to report concerns by calling 020 8489 4592 during office hours or 020 8489 0000 at any other time.

Troubled trust defends role as MP calls for more action

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

MANAGERS of a free school trust have defended their actions after a damning government report and an MP calling on the Education Secretary to intervene further.

In a letter seen by the Advertiser, Nick de Bois, MP for Enfield North, has called on Nicky Morgan to take tough action regarding Cuckoo Hall Academies Trust.

It runs four primary schools and one secondary school in the borough.

The government launched an investigation into the trust after three senior leaders were suspended in November.

The Advertiser reported on the Department for Education's report into the investigation that followed.

The report was published last month and contained details of "serious breaches" of the trust's funding agreement with the government.

It detailed failings around safeguarding issues and governance and made recommendations about changes to the way the trust is run.

The MP for Enfield North, where two of the five schools are based, has demanded drastic action to overhaul the running of the trust, saying that in the eyes of his constituents very little has changed at the trust.

Matthew Laban, headteacher of Heron Hall, in Nightingale Road,

Maligned: Cuckoo Hall Academy is one school in the criticised trust

Edmonton, and Kingfisher Hall, in The Ride, Ponders End, will be leaving the trust in September and Alison Edmonds, the head of Woodpecker Hall, in Nightingale Road, Edmonton, has stepped down from her role at the helm.

Mr de Bois has also called on the people who still run the trust to step down.

Currently, the board of trustees is made up of chairman Marino Charalambous, Anthony O'Hear, Donald Graham and Patricia Sowter.

In the letter addressed to Ms Morgan dated March 20, Mr de Bois writes: "It is clear that this leadership team do not carry the confidence of the parents and should resign to be replaced by a new board."

He adds that he would like to meet the Education Secretary to discuss the concerns of parents who have approached him with their worries.

"I am deeply concerned that given the serious shortcomings highlighted in the report the requirement for the board and management to investigate themselves is flawed and will not carry the confidence of parents and other stakeholders," he said.

However, the trust has insisted that it has put measures in place in response to the report's findings.

A spokesman for the trust said: "As is well-known, the Education Funding Agency report identified areas where we need to make improvements."

"Over the last few weeks we have been working constructively with the EFA to do exactly this, including new governance procedures and strengthening the board, and we hope this reassures anyone with concerns."

"We, and our brilliant staff, remain committed to delivering the very best education to our children so that the trust and our schools become even stronger in the weeks and years ahead."

"This includes the two of our five schools in Mr de Bois's constituency."

"Ofsted says Enfield Heights is already improving since we took it over at the Department for Education's request last year, and Kingfisher Hall is rated outstanding."

The DfE would not say if Ms Morgan had as yet responded to Mr de Bois's calls for intervention.

A spokesman said: "Cuckoo Hall Academies Trust has been issued with a financial notice to improve."

"They have also received a letter from the Regional Schools Commissioner making clear to the trust that they must now take immediate action to address these concerns and strengthen governance arrangements."

"The notice will remain in place until we are satisfied they have done so."

Back-breaking: Youngsters take part in the event at Lee Valley Athletics Centre

Police and rowers take the chance to pull together at largest indoor event

YOUNGSTERS weren't put off their stroke by dozens of police officers among the spectators at the National Indoor Junior Rowing Championships at Edmonton's Lee Valley Athletics Centre on Friday.

The annual event organised by London Youth Rowing is the largest indoor rowing event in the world and attracted 2,700 competitors aged 11-18 from clubs and schools all over England.

Officers from the Met's Pan-London Taskforce, which includes the Territorial Support Group, Mounted branch, Air Support Unit and dog section, were there to give their backing and perform demonstrations of equipment which competitors and spectators could try out for themselves.

A surprise visit by mounted officers PCs Karen Powell and Clare Rees on Merlin and Flint attracted lots of attention.

There were also displays by the Met's Dog Support unit. Handlers PC Tom Terry and PC Lloyd Wright introduced their dogs to the rowers, including a cute 10-week-old German shepherd called Loki.

PC Chris Excell, from the Pan-London Taskforce, said: "This event allowed us to meet young people from across London, affording us the opportunity to build community ties and improve links between the police and our local communities."

Matt Rostron, chief executive at London Youth Rowing, added: "NJIRC is not only about people competing, it's about the way they interact within the communities in which we work."

Horsing around: PCs Karen Powell and Clare Rees on Merlin and Flint

"The Met Police presence at our event is a great example of how a grass-roots community project and the Met Police can work together."

Nearly dying in marathon fails to halt Graham

By Joe Cooper

joe.cooper@nlhnews.co.uk

A MARATHON-loving postie is set to run again in the race which almost killed him.

Graham Barnett, who delivers mail to homes in Hadley Wood, was technically dead for three minutes after collapsing at the London Marathon in 2006, six miles from the finish.

No one would blame Graham, 59, for hanging up his running shoes, but he keeps on going – next month's race will be his 27th marathon.

"Running a marathon is a mental thing," he said. "And I am a bit mental! You have to be slightly unhinged to do it."

Graham used to weigh 16 stone thanks to booze and 40 fags a day.

In 1987, a friend bet Graham he couldn't run 26 miles. He did in 1988 and was running three marathons every year after that, with 50 half-marathons and countless 10k races.

But in 2006, without warning, Graham collapsed, suffered a heart attack and went to hospital. "I like to joke that I ran the first 20 miles in two hours and did the last six at 80mph," he said.

Doctors performed keyhole surgery through to one of his heart's main arteries – which was 100 per cent blocked.

A postman for 26 years, Graham walks seven miles a day on his round.

"If I hadn't had the heart attack in the marathon, I think I would have died," he said. "If I was on my round, I could've fallen into a ditch and that would've been it."

"I think I have cheated death. It totally changes your perspective on life."

Graham is appealing for people to sponsor him for this year's marathon, which he is running for inclusive theatre company Chickenshed, in Chase Side, Southgate.

"I think what they do is brilliant," said Graham, of East Barnet Road, who is a member of the Barnet and District Athletics Club member.

Susan Jamson, press and communications manager at Chickenshed, said: "We are thrilled that Graham is going to run for us." The company needs £3.5million a year to stay afloat.

Fearless Graham has run one other marathon since his heart attack when a friend ran alongside him all the way in 2010 but this year he's going it alone.

"At 22 miles, it's the crowd that get you through," said Graham. "The hairs on the back of your neck stand up."

Graham won't be doing a marathon next year, but still hopes to run the New York Marathon before he retires from running.

"I still run because I enjoy it," he added. "When you think about problems in your life, they just don't seem as bad."

"But you've got to detach your brain from your body. If you run with your brain, you'd only run a couple of miles!"

Women fighting evil of mutilation

Minister backs first conference which hears almost 3,000 girls could be at risk of FGM

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

SURVIVORS of the "cruel" and "barbaric" practice of female genital mutilation urged everyone in the community to play a role in preventing it happening to the estimated 2,800 girls at risk in Enfield.

They told a conference of 120 teachers, health workers and police gathered at the Dugdale Centre for the first conference in the borough about the lifelong traumatising effects of FGM.

They were backed by Baroness Northover, the international development minister, who attended the conference.

Her department is committed to helping end the practice within a generation by working closely with affected communities in the UK.

Delegates heard how the practice, which is illegal in the UK and carries a maximum sentence of 14 years, is a form of child abuse.

It is estimated that 2,800 girls under 19 in Enfield are at risk of FGM, with those aged five to 12 in greatest danger, although it can happen to those of any age and can also be performed on adults.

Detective Constable Sarah Wood said under UK law no child or woman can be deemed to give their consent to the practice. Campaigner Hibo Wardere said: "I can remember it as if it was yesterday. I can remember the smell. They ripped us apart when we were screaming. I was six years old. FGM is cruel. FGM is barbaric."

Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, said: "We must be clear: FGM is a form of child abuse and violence against women and girls. It's a violation of human rights and an extreme form of discrimination against women."

"It's a procedure with no health benefits and one that causes extreme pain, psychological distress and health complications to millions of women worldwide."

She said it was not an easy subject to deal with and was even harder with young children, but school staff had a role to play and needed to be aware of the risks which some pupils face and confident in acting on their concerns.

Parents should be aware of the medical and psychological risks to their daughters and the legal implications if they allow it to happen.

Council leader Doug Taylor said the borough had an FGM Task and Finish Group, which brings together agencies to ensure a "robust and effective" approach to FGM.

Anti-FGM campaigner Enfield-based Alimatu Dimonekene, who set up Project ACEi to end the practice and support women, said: "I felt there was a lot of good work happening and people were not aware of everything that is happening."

She organised the event with Enfield's Safeguarding Team and added: "I was shocked that there are 2,800 girls in Enfield at risk. That is a problem for Enfield. From my experience and passion it's my mission to try and change this. It takes two seconds, but it's a lifetime of pain."

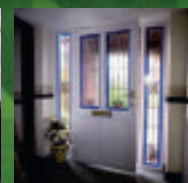

Psychotherapist Leyla Hussein who set up the Dahlia Project to counsel women who have undergone FGM, said: "The focus has always been on physical scars but also there are psychological scars. This is something that people have to live with."

She said that although survivors can't get rid of it, they can learn how to live with the consequences and many campaign to prevent it happening to others.

Taking a peek at £1m gym rebuild

A SNEAK peek of the revamp being carried out to Southbury Leisure Centre as part of a multi-million-pound modernisation of the borough's leisure facilities was given to the council's cabinet member with responsibility for them.

Rohini Simbodyal, the cabinet member for culture, sport, youth and public health, got to see for herself the progress being made on a visit to the centre, in Southbury Road, Enfield.

Both Southbury and Edmonton Leisure Centre are being refurbished with a £1.2million cash injection from Enfield Council and its leisure partner, Fusion Lifestyle.

It includes enlarged gym areas and the latest interactive fitness equipment, plus upgraded indoor cycle studios and static cycles.

Miss Simbodyal said: "This investment in Enfield's leisure facilities has come from the surplus made from our partnership with Fusion Lifestyle, which we are reinvesting to improve services.

"Our last public health report showed people are living longer than before and in better health, so we want to encourage this trend by getting as many people as possible to sign up for their local Fusion gym, as there is something for everyone there."

Dad desperate as wife's details 'found on Syrian smuggler's laptop'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MOTHER has left her home and is believed to have taken her two young children with her on to the battlefields of Syria.

Rehana Islam, 33, from Ponders End, was reported missing by her husband Azizul in February.

He returned home one evening and realised that she and their children, aged eight and three, had gone.

The Metropolitan Police stressed that they were not hunting Rehana in connection with any crime.

They believed she had travelled to Turkey with her son and daughter and had crossed into Syria.

Speaking to the Daily Mail, Azizul said he was desperate for his wife to return with their children.

He said: "My question is why did she go there? She has two kids, she has a family and this house is in her name. Why has she left everything? This is really unbelievable.

"When the police told me she travelled to Gaziantep - I've seen it in the news, so many British people are trying to travel there - it came into my mind that maybe she's gone to Syria, but still I can't believe it."

It is believed details relating to Rehana were found on the laptop of the man arrested on suspicion of helping to smuggle three British schoolgirls across the border.

Although her Facebook page has not been updated since January 10, one of the "likes" on the site relates to a blog called fromyourwomen.

The tagline states: "Dedicated to our Mujaahids in Shaam".

In traditional Arabic literature Sham refers to the area to the east of the Mediterranean Sea known as the geographical area of Syria today.

Mujaahids refers to people involved in jihad.

Islamic leaders in the borough have stressed that radicalisation is not in danger of spreading in Enfield.

A spokesman from the Palmers Green mosque and Islamic centre, in Oakthorpe Road, said that although he couldn't comment on individual cases centres like Palmers Green, with a focus on community inclusion, dramatically reduce the risk factors around radicalisation.

He said: "We have open days here, with education activities, and we work closely with youth clubs and parent and toddler groups.

"With all this community work, there is really very little chance of the people who come here becoming radicalised."

Most mosques vet who is allowed to speak, but the spokesman added: "It is other forces, things on the internet, things they see and read that aren't vetted by the mosque that could cause problems."

dance festival

LEGENDS and fables have been brought to life by more than 1,000 pupils in this year's Enfield Schools' Dance Festival.

The theme is Dance Me a Story and participants have let their imagination run riot as they present their interpretation of some of the world's best-loved tales.

They include Little Red Riding Hood, Romeo and Juliet and stories set under the sea.

Performers aged from four to 19 have taken to the spotlight at the Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton, with 58 schools taking part in this year's event.

Pictured on these pages are youngsters from Honilands Primary School, in Lovell Road, Bullsmoor, Hazelbury Junior School, in Edmonton, and Oasis Academy, in Mollison Avenue, Enfield Lock.

Now in its 13th year, the festival is organised by Enfield's PE team to promote education and physical activity while putting on a show-stopping festival.

Organiser Marion Coram-Ware said: "This year's theme explores stories through dance and has been good for their literacy, too."

The four-day festival finishes tomorrow. Tickets are available from the box office on 020 8807 6680.

POLITICIANS shouldn't need to be told that people are turned off by their nitpicking, crude, petty, cynical jibes at opponents. They would do better finding common ground improving life for the many, not the few.

Until May 7 we'll hear daily there's a booming economy, yet many families suspect they are worse off after five years of fiscal reforms, says columnist Ian Cowie in The Sunday Times (March 15).

And Cardinal Vincent Nichols, the head of the Catholic Church in England and Wales, has urged us to judge politics by how it helps the poor.

"It's shocking that in a society that is as rich as ours there are people, even people in employment, dependent on food banks," adds the archbishop.

You'll have heard David Cameron, Boris Johnson and Ed Miliband asking employers to pay the London Living Wage – £9.15 an hour – while the government's Low Pay Commission is recommending a pitiful 20p rise in October, taking the minimum wage to £6.70 an hour.

While it's good news that Enfield Council pays its employees the London Living Wage, I'd like to see other local employers signing up and putting more spending power in the local economy.

The Over 50s Forum is doing its bit by asking Fusion Lifestyles to do the right thing at its Enfield leisure centres – the most profitable in London, yet its staff, without a pay rise for five years, are among the many still waiting to feel the benefit from the economic recovery.

History shows that cycle lanes can be a failure

IN reply to J Mills ("Everyone pays for our roads", Advertiser, March 11), I agree with him that we all pay taxes in varying amounts for services including upkeep of roads.

However, motorists alone pay a huge additional sum enjoyed by everyone. The RAC Foundation said the amount for 2012 was £30.7billion, comprising fuel duty and vehicle tax.

My letter of February 25 restated this in response to anti-car comments.

This, together with my description of cycling as an activity providing free travel, has caused Mr Mills to object because he pays tax, but cycling is free compared with other forms of travel.

It is not a criticism of cycling. It is a recognised bonus of bike ownership.

I agree with Mr Mills that most roads are public highways for use by everyone.

I also agree that there are irresponsible drivers as well as cyclists. If they obeyed traffic laws, casualty numbers would be much lower.

With regard to Cycle Enfield, everybody is entitled to make legitimate objections.

Enfield Council is proposing to spend £41million on narrow segregated cycle lanes.

If it results in an upsurge in cycling, will impatient cyclists stay in the narrow lanes, or transfer to more space on the roads?

Many years ago, a segregated cycle lane was built along the A10 south of the Cambridge roundabout. It fell into disuse and parts of it can still be seen.

I hope Cycle Enfield will not become a similar failure.

Plain packets are good idea

OVER the past few years, the health-care crisis in Enfield has become particularly acute.

We have seen the downgrading of Chase Farm Hospital and the pressure this has placed on other hospitals.

GP practices have closed and the London Ambulance Service in the borough has one of the worst response times for life-threatening calls in London.

One would think that the current situation would give local MPs plenty of issues to campaign on.

However, why is it that Nick de Bois thinks a health issue he should be really vocal about is opposing the introduction of standardised cigarette packaging?

I have seen a number of comments by him on this issue and he voted against the proposal in parliament on Wednesday, March 11.

Plain cigarette packaging is supported by health experts and can play an important role in reducing the number of children taking up smoking.

This measure would have positive health benefits and this is something Mr de Bois should support and not oppose. Thank goodness he lost this argument and parliament voted for plain packaging.

Calls to extend cycle routes across capital

AS an associate cabinet member for the south-east part of Enfield and chairman of the Cycle Enfield Board, please allow me to inform that big companies including Orange, Sky, Santander, National Grid and a further 24 more employers have signed a letter addressed to the Mayor of London and all the leaders of political parties expressing not only their support, but also the reasons why cycle routes should be extended across London.

Cycling is a healthy exercise and these companies have also pointed out that they experience fewer sick days, reduced stress and more productivity.

It goes on to say that New York, where cycle routes are in force, has seen a 150 per cent rise in sales.

Enfield Council is continuing its consultation on proposed cycle routes across the borough with various exhibitions and people are asked to give their opinion.

Cycle routes will make Enfield a safer place for cyclists and prevent accidents involving cars and cyclists.

This is a project that will be of benefit to present and future generations with a better quality of air and a far better quality of life.

The benefits for all are too many to be listed here.

Shot in the arm for Chase Farm

WHAT fantastic news that Chase Farm Hospital's future is to be secured for the long term with massive investment (Advertiser, March 18).

I think the Royal Free NHS trust deserves great credit for producing a plan that means Chase Farm is here to stay. While I would prefer to see A&E return to Chase Farm, that's clearly not on the cards.

This plan means our hospital – subject to so much uncertainty and controversy for years – can now look ahead to the future with certainty, which is so important for staff as well as patients.

I hoped it would also stop Chase Farm being used as a political football, but alas it seems former MP Joan Ryan is determined to use it for political gain by stating the hospital is due to close.

Miliband attacks PM over closure of hospital A&E

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

LABOUR leader Ed Miliband has slammed the Prime Minister over the closure of the accident and emergency unit at Chase Farm Hospital.

At PM's questions on Wednesday last week, Mr Miliband brandished a picture of David Cameron visiting Chase Farm in 2007 when he pledged that under his watch vital services at the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, would be protected.

In 2013, the A&E and maternity services at the hospital were shut down after former Secretary of State for Health Andrew Lansley embarked on a wholesale "reorganisation" of hospitals.

Mr Miliband told the House of Commons: "He [David Cameron] closed the services. That is what happened on his watch."

"Since the last election, the Prime Minister has broken his health service promises on waiting times, cancer treatment, A&E and top-down reorganisation. When he makes a whole series of new NHS promises, why on earth should anyone believe him?"

Last week the Advertiser reported that a multi-million-pound redevelopment plan for Chase Farm had been given the go-ahead by Enfield Council.

The buildings on the site have been judged as no longer fit for purpose.

Joan Ryan, Labour's prospective parliamen-

Marching: Campaigners fought a long battle to try and save Chase Farm services

tary candidate for Enfield North, echoed Mr Miliband's argument and said that the NHS "cannot survive another five years with the Tories at the helm".

She added: "Now they [the government] state that the redevelopment of Chase Farm will safeguard its future, but how can Enfield residents be expected to have any confidence in what they say on this matter?"

Last week David Sloman, the chief executive of the Royal Free NHS Foundation Trust, which runs Chase Farm, said the scale of the investment in buildings and services was the clearest possible sign that the NHS was committed to the long-term future of the hospital.

Council to control its housing again

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCIL housing will be managed by the local authority again from April after seven years under the control of Enfield Homes.

The arms-length management company started acting as landlord for council tenants in 2008 with responsibility for running, repairing and improving homes in the borough

The move to bring the service back in-house will be completed by April 1.

The council says that tenants should not be affected by the changes.

It said: "For existing tenants and leaseholders services will operate as they do now and in the overwhelming majority of cases they will have the same housing officer – who will work for the council instead of Enfield Homes."

More than 300 employees attended a staff seminar about the changes last autumn and the last Enfield Homes board meeting will be held tomorrow.

The council's cabinet member for housing Ahmet Oykener said: "The Enfield Homes board and staff worked hard improving customer satisfaction and delivering £125million of decent homes and major capital works.

"This excellent work has secured a strong foundation for us to continue working with residents and since we are retaining the staff it will be business as usual.

"My thanks go to all those who have worked so hard at Enfield Homes."

The outgoing Enfield Homes chairwoman Vicky Dungate said the aim had been to ensure a smooth transition of services. Taking over from her, the council's assistant housing director Paul Davey said: "Not only will we continue to deliver high-quality services, but we will also take advantage of closer working links with our council colleagues to deliver a more coordinated and improved performance.

Transition: homes chief Ahmet Oykener

"I would like to say a huge thank you to all those who have contributed to this success."

Following a consultation in 2012, tenants voted in favour of Enfield Homes remaining under arms-length control.

However, leaseholders voted for the organisation to be brought back in-house and the council decided then to set the wheels of reintegration in motion.

A council report said it would save £500,000.

Man, 84, hurt in holiday cash grab

A PENSIONER is recovering in hospital after he had thousands of pounds stolen from him in a violent robbery where his leg was broken.

Police in Enfield are appealing for information after the 84-year-old was knocked to the ground before a robber took 4,000 euros.

Police were called to Wades Hill, Winchmore Hill, on Saturday afternoon and spoke to the victim, who explained that he had returned home by car after withdrawing the euros.

When he got out of the car and tried to get into his home, he was set upon by a man described as an eastern European, in his mid to late 20s, of medium build, with short black hair and a moustache. He was wearing a black Parker-style jacket with a fur-lined hood, blue jeans and black shoes and left in a grey Audi car.

The victim was taken to hospital, where he needs surgery on a broken leg.

Detective Constable John McCarthy, from Enfield CID, said: "This was a vicious and sickening attack on a vulnerable elderly man who had exchanged money ahead of a holiday with his wife. There is a strong indication that he was targeted and followed by the suspect from a money exchange shop in Oakwood."

"I urge anyone who witnessed the incident or has any information to call police on 101, quoting reference 5206085/15, or contact Crime-stoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111."

'Badly explained rule change hits diabetics unfairly'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN MP wants the government to stop punishing diabetes sufferers who do not have the right paperwork.

Nick de Bois, the MP for Enfield North, who is the co-chairman of the all-party parliamentary group for health, is demanding that people suffering from diabetes should not be being fined as much as £100 for failing to have the proper medical exemption certificate with them.

In England, people aged between 18 and 60 who suffer from diabetes are entitled to free prescriptions.

However, last year in a bid to beat fraud, the NHS introduced a rule which stated that patients needed a special certificate to prove they were in genuine need of medicine.

But the MP has put it to government that because few people know about the scheme it has left many sufferers facing fines of £100 for failing to produce their certificates – despite the fact they had no idea they needed any.

Last year, more than 18,000 people were fined for claiming free prescriptions without a medical exemption certificate.

Mr de Bois has written to health minister Dan Poulter to point out that many of these fines are a direct result of the new law change being poorly explained.

He said: "People with diabetes who have done nothing wrong are being unfairly targeted by a system designed to tackle fraud."

"This is because the government has done a very poor job of communicating that free prescriptions must be claimed with a valid medical exemption certificate."

The MP wants the government to cancel and reimburse diabetes sufferers who have been forced to pay the fines to date.

He said: "Until then people with diabetes will continue to be innocent victims of a poorly implemented government policy."

The letter Mr Poulter is receiving from a group of cross-party MPs has also been signed by Adrian Sanders and the former Labour Shadow Secretary of State for Health John Healey.

Yas makes TV mark as a political campaigner

A POLITICAL campaigner has shot to fame after playing a starring role in a TV documentary about the power of activism.

Yas Necati, 18, from Palmers Green, was one of a trio of young campaigners featured on a BBC3 documentary aimed at getting young people engaged with politics.

After Lucy Holmes, the founder of the No More Page 3 movement, namechecked Yas in an interview with the Advertiser two weeks ago, audiences saw her throw herself in front of Rupert Murdoch's chauffeur-driven 4x4 as part of her protest against the objectification of women in The Sun.

Asked whether she had been scared, she said: "It was actually one of my favourite actions as part of the protest. I knew he wasn't about to kill me – and I think the adrenaline of doing something like that can make you feel great."

Speaking about the impact of seeing that her efforts had worked (it has been months since The Sun featured bare breasts on page 3), she told the Advertiser she hoped some would see it and realise that if young people did not vote they would be always kept outside the political process.

"I really believe in the power of people power," she added. "I think the media usually presents one version of women and of young people and from that comes an extreme sense of disempowerment."

"Sometimes for women and again for young people it can feel as if your voice isn't valued. Women's looks are valued, but not what we do or say or think."

"That's a shame because young women have so much to say and can say it in such great ways. If people watch that documentary and realise they do have a voice and can make a difference, then I feel as if I have achieved something."

Warning: Nick Dines in Lancaster Road with Enfield North MP Nick de Bois

Accident fears as delivery vans add to traffic problem

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCILLOR has warned that the traffic congestion in a road in Enfield has reached the point where it amounts to "an accident waiting to happen".

Nick Dines, who represents Chase ward, has issued a stark warning to the council and the Co-operative supermarket chain that unless more is done to clamp down on articulated lorries making deliveries to stores in Lancaster Road, someone will be fatally injured.

The parent-teacher association of St Michael's Primary School, in Brigadier Hill, wrote to the councillor asking for help in tackling the dangerous congestion caused by delivery trucks parked up beside the former Hollybush pub on the corner of Lancaster Road and Chase Side.

The Conservative councillor has been on a crusade to solve the problem of congestion, tail-backs, traffic jams and dangerous driving which he believes stems from the proliferation of supermarkets in the road.

"I have seen it with my own eyes – at school times – cars try to overtake these lorries in a very narrow road. It is an accident waiting to happen," he told the Advertiser.

But a spokesman from the Co-operative has insisted that after receiving some complaints from residents before Christmas delivery times in the road were changed to 8pm.

He said: "We are not aware of any concerns regarding deliveries or traffic following this move."

Mr Dines maintains that he has not noticed any improvement in the situation.

"I am actually meeting representatives from the school to discuss this issue in a few weeks," he said.

However, after months of lobbying he says the council had agreed to undertake a "holistic review" of the traffic situation in the road.

He added: "The road itself is very narrow and the entire traffic situation there needs to be reviewed."

Crackdown on school run drivers flouting parking restrictions

No parking: 181 penalty notices were issued near St Andrew's Primary School, in Churchbury Lane, Enfield, last year

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A CLAMPDOWN has been launched on parents who park illegally when dropping off or picking up their children from school.

Enfield Council is setting up a rapid response team of traffic wardens who will pay random visits to schools to tackle the problem of motorists who breaking parking regulations and who the council says could endanger the lives of children or their parents.

The team will be out and about during the school run and drivers who park where they are not allowed to face fines.

According to council figures, 181 fixed penalty notices were issued last year near St Andrew's Primary School, in Churchbury Lane, Enfield, and another 160 were given out to motorists parking near Enfield County School, in Rosemary Avenue, Enfield.

The other locations on the council's top ten list of illegal parking on the school run were Eversley Primary School, in Chaseville Park Road, Winchmore Hill, Southgate School, in Sussex Way, Highfield Primary School, in Highfield Road, Winchmore Hill, Chesterfield School, in Chesterfield Road, Enfield Lock, Wilbury Primary School, in Wilbury Way, Edmonton, St Mary's Primary School, in Durants Road, Ponders End, Chase Side Primary School, in Trinity Street, Enfield, and Honilands Primary School, in Lovell Road, Bullsmoor.

Cabinet member for environment and community safety Chris Bond said that most parents parked responsibly.

However, he added: "Unfortunately, there is a small minority that can't be bothered to do that and instead choose to cause chaos by dumping their car wherever they choose.

"There is absolutely no excuse at all for parking illegally outside schools. It endangers children, disrupts traffic and causes chaos during the morning rush hour.

"The aim of the clampdown," said his colleague Ayfer Orhan, cabinet member for education, is "to reduce accidents and disruption around our schools and improve the traffic flow during the school rush hours because that benefits children, parents and commuters."

Ms Orhan added: "Where that doesn't work we'll be cracking down on dangerous and inappropriate parking close to school sites. We are taking this robust approach because safety is paramount and it is part of our wider efforts to give families safe and sustainable access to schools."

Ex-Tory candidate jailed

A FORMER Conservative candidate has been jailed for making a false claim in his election paperwork.

Michael Fadaka, 34, of Bedale Road, Enfield, had pleaded guilty at Wood Green Crown Court last month to making a false declaration in his nomination papers before last year's council elections.

He was given a six-month prison sentence on Wednesday last week.

Fadaka stood as a Conservative candidate in Enfield Lock ward.

Last year it was reported that Mr

Fadaka had been handed a 12-month suspended sentence in 2012 after falsely claiming £30,000 of housing benefit and income support while he was a student.

However, it is believed he did not mention his conviction when selected to stand in the council elections.

Under the Local Government Act 1972 a person is barred from standing for the council if he or she has been given a jail term of three months or more, whether suspended or not, within five years of an election.

Top marks for girls' school

GCSE results earn awards double

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A SCHOOL has gone to the top of the class thanks to its pupils' excellent GCSE results putting it into the top ten per cent in England.

More than two fifths of the students at St Anne's Catholic High School for Girls, in Palmers Green, gained at least five GCSEs at A* to C for the second year running, exceeding the national average of 55 per cent.

The school's academic prowess has been recognised with two educational outcomes awards from the Schools, Students and Teachers Network, a company which offers professional development for schools.

The awards, which will be presented at a ceremony next month, are for the school's position in the top ten per cent for high GCSE attainment and for progress in academic achievement.

In 2013, 81 per cent of pupils got five GCSEs, including maths and English, at A* to C, an increase of 30 per cent on the previous year, according to school inspecting body Ofsted.

SSAT's chief executive Sue

Williamson said the school, in Oakthorpe Road, is "leading the field in improving GCSE outcomes for their students".

"There is so much good practice that this school could share," she said.

"These results are testament to the commitment and hard work of the students, teachers and leadership team at St Anne's and show what can be achieved when skilled teachers have high expectations and ambition for every young person. I am proud that this school is a member of the SSAT network."

The school's headteacher Siobhan Gilling said: "We are thrilled that our hard work has been recognised nationally. This can only be achieved with a committed staff and with young people who are determined to learn and make the most of their skills and talents."

Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, praised the school's achievement.

She said: "Congratulations to everyone at St Anne's. National recognition demonstrates the superb quality of teaching and learning at the school and it is thoroughly well-deserved."

Demonstrating: Protesters outside the Windmill Hill job centre

Protest at 'cruel' cuts to benefits

By Joe Cooper

joe.cooper@nlhnews.co.uk

UNION members held a demonstration outside a job centre calling for an end to the "grotesque cruelty" of benefit sanctions.

Members of Enfield Alliance Against the Cuts displayed a banner and handed out leaflets outside the Windmill Hill job centre in Enfield.

The demonstration last Thursday was part of a national day of action by the Unite trade union.

The union says that in London the total number of sanctions handed out by the Department for Work and Pensions between October 2013 and September 2014 was 103,679.

Chairman of Enfield Alliance Against the Cuts Chris Kaufman said: "This is just one more attack on the low paid and vulnerable by the coalition government."

"We can't stand by and let people have their benefits – which are mean enough already – slashed further, causing untold misery."

Liane Groves, Unite's community national organiser, said: "This government is attacking the unemployed for unemployment and treating claimants worse than criminals fined in the courts."

"Decisions on guilt are made in secret with the claimant not even allowed to be present to explain their case."

"Far from helping people back into work, sanctions undermine physical and mental health. They cause hardship, damage relationships, create homelessness and drive people to food banks, payday lenders and crime."

"There is no justification for this grotesque cruelty by the government. Unite is calling on the DWP to end benefit sanctions as this situation can't be allowed to go on in the sixth richest country in the world."

The Enfield Advertiser is pleased to be an Official Media Partner of Enfield Council as it celebrates the 50th Anniversary of the formation of the London Borough of Enfield...

TB worries on the rise as disease makes comeback

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to watch out for the symptoms of a potentially killer disease which is making a worrying comeback in the UK after years in decline.

Enfield Council held an event this week to highlight awareness of tuberculosis to mark World TB Day yesterday so people can find out more about the respiratory lung disease and its impact on communities.

People who have had a cough for three weeks, night sweats, a fever, weight loss, lack of appetite and tiredness are being advised to see their GP so they can receive urgent treatment.

Tuberculosis is a bacterial infection spread through inhaling tiny droplets from the coughs or sneezes of an infected person.

It is a potentially fatal condition which mainly affects the lungs, but can be completely cured with proper treatment.

Before antibiotics were introduced, TB was a major health problem in the United Kingdom.

It is much less common now. However, in the past 20 years TB cases have gradually increased, particularly among ethnic minority communities who are originally from places where the disease is more common.

In 2013, about 8,000 cases of TB were reported in the UK. Of these, more than 5,000 affected people were born outside the UK.

With treatment, TB can usually be cured. Most people will need a course of antibiotics, usually for six months.

The council's cabinet member for culture, sport, youth and public health Rohini Simbodayal said: "If you think you may have TB, it's vital that you get yourself checked by a doctor so that you can be prescribed a course of treatment to cure you."

"We are keen to stamp out TB and it's very important that people with the disease are caught early to prevent them from infecting other people."

"This is a potentially unpleasant disease and we're looking to stop it in its tracks but we need the help of residents to do that."

Shear delight: One of the Forty Hill Farm sheepette & Herald Series

Animal

Horseplay: Molly, seven, and Poppy, eight, meet Wallace

Thousands flock to farm's lambing

IT was fun and frolics as more than 3,000 folk flocked to Forty Hill Farm for a special event on Saturday and Sunday to mark the lambing season.

And there was plenty more for young and old to see and do besides watching the new arrivals gambolling in the fields and being fed by farmhands.

Other activities included rural crafts, such as felt hat-making, pottery, apple-pressing and clay pot making, and traditional rural entertainment was provided by the Enfield-based Etcetera Morris Dancers.

The farm, in Forty Hill, Enfield, comprises livestock, alongside commercial market gardens, orchards and vineyards, and is managed by Capel Manor College, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, and supported by volunteers.

It will now be open to the public every weekend until the end of the summer.

"Lambing time denotes the start of the farm year," said farm manager Kate McGeevor.

"We have had 35 new-born lambs so far, but we still have 20 pregnant ewes so that figure could rise to 60 or 70."

She said the farm was a "fantastic" way for people to see how food was produced and to reconnect with the rural ways of life.

Next up at the farm is the Easter Family Festival on Monday, April 6, from noon to 6pm, including craft activities and stalls, live music, circus skills and games, as well as plenty of food stalls and a bar. Admission is £6.50 for adults, £3.50 for children under 16 and free for children under two and proceeds go to the Art Start charity

Open shop: Brigadier Andrew Parker Bowles, right, with Forty Hall Farm manager Kate McGeevor and Capel Manor College governor Paul Campbell

Brigadier opens up visitors' centre

THE farmyard fun was rounded off as Brigadier Andrew Parker Bowles officially opened Forty Hall Farm's visitors' centre and shop.

The Bowles family has a long association with the mansion and the surrounding land. Brigadier Bowles' great-grandfather bought it for his grandfather as a wedding present in 1894 and he recalled living there in his childhood and exploring the farm and buildings.

He also praised the restoration that has taken place since Enfield Council bought the property.

"It gives me real pleasure every time I come back and see what is happening and how the farm is being used educationally and for food production," he said.

"The vineyard, orchard and other projects are innovative and exciting."

The shop is open on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sunday, from 11am to 4pm, and will also be a pick-up point for the Enfield Veg Co. vegetable bag scheme, enabling people to collect locally-grown organic vegetables.

Easter Greetings

from Churches Together in Southgate, Oakwood and Cockfosters
We warmly invite you to our Easter Services

Churches Together in Southgate, Oakwood and Cockfosters comprises nine churches of different Christian traditions seeking to work together to spread the Good News of Jesus Christ

We invite you to explore what Easter really means and its relevance for us today by joining one of our services

Good Friday Walk of Witness

On Good Friday Christians world-wide remember the cruel execution of Jesus Christ. But how can that be good? It's good because Jesus' death on the cross shows us the extent of God's love for us. In Jesus Christ God gave himself, so that we can be forgiven. Join us as we follow the Cross through the streets of Southgate together to a service at Christ Church, Waterfall Road. N14.

◆ Starts 9.15am. Inside St Andrew's Church, Chase Side N14..

Easter Sunday Sunrise Service

Central to the Christian Faith is the fact that God raised Jesus Christ from the dead and that he is alive today. Join us at the beginning of the day to celebrate this fact, the fact that Jesus, born as Immanuel, 'God with us', is still 'with us' today!

◆ Starts 6.30am. Trent Park. Oakwood entrance, opposite Oakwood Tube Station. N14

MPs' concern at courier firm job losses

Closed: The City Link depot in Edmonton, where 36 workers lost their jobs

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A LACK of clarity over money owed to workers who were laid off when courier company City Link collapsed at Christmas caused "unnecessary worry and upset for staff", a report by MPs found. The collapse of the company resulted in the loss of 36 jobs at the Edmonton depot at Bestway Business Park.

A House of Commons report into the impact of the closure of City Link on employment called for changes to the law after workers discovered they were out of work on Christmas Day without any consultation.

There is a statutory redundancy consultation period of 45 days for firms employing more than 100 people. The Edmonton workers were among 3,000 people who lost their jobs nationwide when the company collapsed last December, including 1,000 self-employed drivers and agency staff.

The majority of workers at the depot in Ardra Road were made redundant on New Year's Eve when 31 people lost their jobs.

The remaining five workers stayed on to deal with outstanding parcels and left their jobs on January 15 when the company closed 51 depots nationwide.

MPs said they were "greatly concerned that the existing system incentivises companies to break the law on consultation with employees" if the fine is less than the cost of continuing to trade for the consultation period. Jon Moulton, the founder of City Link's owner Better Capital, told the committee that the purpose of a consultation period was consultation. "These are circumstances where no consultation is reasonably possible," he said.

The report called for the government to support dialogue between unions, employers and insolvency professionals to improve ways of sharing information if a company faces administration.

In a statement Better Capital said: "We explored thoroughly and carefully every avenue to a solvent outcome, but sadly failed to find one."

It said that issues about employee consultation near insolvency need a change in legislation.

Putting down roots

Primary school pupils plant trees

CHILDREN from five eco-orientated primary schools got their hands dirty when they planted 60 new trees last week.

The pupils took the chance to get the mini-orchard off the ground at Merryhills Primary School, in Bincote Road, Enfield, on Tuesday after winning a green travel competition run by transport charity Sustrans.

The youngsters were awarded points for the number of trips they made to school on foot or by bike rather than being ferried there by parents.

The schools won the Be an Active Ranger (BEAR) competition, part of a borough-wide campaign launched by Enfield Council's Smarter Travel Team in January, 2014.

To date, 38 primary schools have taken part in the campaign, which was developed through the borough's School Travel Plan programme to encourage safe and sustainable means of transport.

As part of the contest, children are urged to walk, scoot or cycle to school or "park and stride" if they do come by car to reduce congestion around school gates.

The children collected stickers throughout the school year each time they took part and the top five were invited to help with the tree planting session.

Councillor Chris Bond, cabinet member for environment and community safety, said: "This wonderful competition saw more than 60 native trees planted in the grounds of Merryhills Primary School by local children.

"The scheme forms part of the Enfield 2020 sustainability programme, helping them learn about the importance of trees to offset carbon in our environment and how they can also be havens for wildlife.

"It is vital that young people learn how important it is to protect and enhance the environment at an early age and this scheme will help them to do that."

Head girl Lucy is a great achiever

By Julia Gregory
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A STUDENT who overcame bullying and used her experiences to support others believes a young leaders' scheme helped her become head girl.

Lucy Eracleous was picked to join the Young Achievers Network run by the education charity Jack Petchey Foundation thanks to her dedication to younger students at Edmonton County School.

The scheme helps pupils develop professional and personal skills and teams them up with mentors to help them overcome challenges.

More than 150,000 children in London and Essex have participated in the scheme over the past 15 years.

"Without being in the Young Achievers Network, I don't think I would have had the confidence to compete against other students," said 16-year-old Lucy.

Candidates hoping to become head girl at the school, in Great Cambridge Road, have to face three tough stages – winning votes from their peers, writing a letter to the assistant head about their candidacy and an interview with head-teacher Dr Susan Tranter.

Lucy was enlisted on the mentoring programme through her school in 2013/14 and decided to extend the opportunity to other pupils.

She spent the £200 grant she was given on student mentor badges and rewards for students who have been mentored.

Top class: Lucy Eracleous, head girl at Edmonton County School

She said the scheme had really helped her build her character which contributed to her selection for one of the school's top roles for students.

The head girl, who is joining in the celebrations marking 15 years of the scheme, said: "The Achievers Network played a huge role in my confidence, social skills and decision-making. It has helped me expand, speak up and believe in myself."

Maria Panayi, who looks after student leaders at the school, said: "Lucy is an impeccably behaved model student. She has overcome serious bullying and has used this to show great empathy to others in similar situations."

Lucy said her mentor, a grants officer at the Jack Petchey Foundation, helped with her transformation.

"Schenell Stephens was my role model throughout the whole programme," she added. "Without her advice and mentoring sessions after school, I wouldn't be the independent Lucy I am today."

Why dancing's strictly business for Pasha...

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

COMPETITIVE ballroom dancing, with its sequined frocks, fake tans and men in tight-fitting, slashed-to-the-waist chiffon shirts, would once have been regarded as slightly naff by less-enlightened folk – but no longer.

The phenomenal popularity of TV's Strictly Come Dancing, which regularly attracts 10 million viewers, has made the tango, rumba, paso doble, foxtrot, waltz, salsa and other examples of formal dance the cup of cha cha cha of the masses.

Capitalising on the resurgence of interest inspired by the show, professional dancer and Strictly 2014 champion Pasha Kovalev is bringing his own dance extravaganza to Edmonton's Millfield Theatre.

The 35-year-old, who won the title with his celebrity partner Caroline Flack, hits the stage on Tuesday with his Life Through Dance tour.

And the spectacular show has all the raz-zamatazz a Strictly fan could want, with breathtaking choreography, sparkling costumes and sensational music.

Pasha, who started dancing in his native Russia at the age of eight, is reunited with his compatriot and former professional dance partner Anya Garnis.

They and his talented dance troupe take the audience on a dazzling journey through life and love, expressed through the language of dance.

Pasha said: "This is my fourth tour, but Life Through Dance is a brand new show.

"There is new music, new costumes and it's all about dancing. The themes cover every aspect of everyday life – meeting people, love and break-ups.

"The audience will be able to get up close and personal and I'm looking forward to really being able to engage with them.

"I believe the show presents a good mixture of classic and contemporary dance and has real character. Each dance has its own unique feel."

Up close and personal: Strictly Come Dancing champion Pasha Kovalev

You shall go to the ball

CINDERELLA (U, 113mins)

SLAIVISHLY adapted from Disney's classic 1950 animated musical, Kenneth Branagh's live action version of the fairy-tale romance doesn't skimp on the period detail.

Sandy Powell's luxurious costumes, Dante Ferretti's opulent set designs and Patrick Doyle's sweeping orchestral score conjure a magical world of unerring love in which we even gasp at the gargantuan splendour of the grand ball where the Prince must choose his wife.

While this Cinderella unquestionably dazzles the senses, screenwriter Chris Weitz is shackled to fond memories of the hand-drawn film and, consequently, he has almost no room for flourishes of originality.

The plot arc is predetermined, the ugly stepsisters don't hack off their heels or toes to squeeze into a misplaced glass slipper and Helena Bonham Carter's fairy godmother isn't quite as eccentric as she or we would like as she engineers the film's best set-piece with a flick of her wand.

"I don't go transforming pumpkins for just anyone!" she chirps.

No, the special effects wizards do and they accomplish the pivotal sequence with aplomb.

Before all of the jiggery-pokery with a pumpkin, four mice and a goose, Ella (Lily James) is consigned to the kitchen by her vindictive stepmother Lady Tremaine (Cate Blanchett) and brattish stepsisters Anastasia (Holliday Grainger) and Drizella (Sophie McShera).

Emboldened by the dying words of her mother (Hayley Atwell) – "Have courage and be kind" – Ella tries to rise above the bullying.

When the name-calling becomes too frightful, she escapes on horseback and catches the eye of the dashing Prince (Richard Madden), who must pick a bride at the behest of the dying King (Derek Jacobi).

So the Prince throws a lavish ball, where Ella makes her grand entrance then disappears as the clock chimes midnight, leaving behind footwear that would surely pose a health and safety risk in any other film.

"Find that girl – the forgetful one who loses her shoes!" decrees the captain of the royal guard (Nonzo Anosie).

Cinderella will enchant a generation of girls, who dream of donning the tiara of a Disney princess.

James and Madden are an attractive screen pairing, while Blanchett draws inspiration from Joan Crawford to cast a formidable shadow from beneath the brim of her character's extravagant hats.

"I do love a happy ending, don't you?" gushes one of the characters.

Branagh's film certainly does, without a hint of irony.

The main feature is preceded by the animated short Frozen Fever, which continues the adventures of sisters Anna (voiced by Kristen Bell) and Elsa (Idina Menzel) as they prepare for a birthday celebration.

Here at Lanes Estate Agents in Hertford, we've been dealing with a number of rarely available and truly unique properties recently. From a five bedroom detached Victorian house requiring a complete overhaul, to a four bedroom architecturally designed home from the 1960's with a 200 year old coach house!

We have found that a large proportion of our purchasers are moving from parts of North London – primarily Enfield, Winchmore Hill, Southgate and Grange Park. With this migratory trend set to continue, Lanes are able to assist with our Enfield offices referring their local sellers up to our Hertford branch to buy.

Most of these clients point to a number of reasons why the move to Hertford is attractive to them – we have excellent commuter links with two mainline stations (connecting to Moorgate/Kings Cross and Liverpool Street); the choice local schooling is superb; the pace of life is a little slower and of course the property prices tend to mean buyers get better value for money.

If you're considering a move to Hertford or the surrounding villages, Lanes would be delighted to help and can assist with expert local knowledge, advice on property values, schools, community matters and more – so why not get in touch with our sales team today and get your move to Hertford off to the very best start.

Sticking to winning formula

By Matt Kimberley

THE CX-5 led Mazda's charge back to winning ways in 2012 with the striking "Kodo" styling that was then rolled out on everything else, from the 2 supermini to the 6 flagship saloon. This is the first time a Kodo car has been updated, so, as you can imagine, Mazda has kept the visual changes to a minimum.

On the inside, the MZD infotainment system has been revised and you'll find some of the main buttons in a more intuitive place between the front seats. Small things can make big differences.

You'd have to argue that the CX-5 has been the prettiest member of the compact SUV class since it was launched. Nothing has changed too much on that front, with a tweak here and a lift there.

Soft lines and muscular shapes combine to hide the car's size exceptionally well. The Mazda is bigger than a Nissan Qashqai, but doesn't look it.

Something has always held this car's sales back versus the sector sales leaders, though – even if a few hours with the car leaves me clueless as to why.

It holds its own against any rival, so perhaps something in the CX-5's image is struggling to shout loud enough to be heard over the crowd. You be the judge.

An average-height man in the driving seat of the manual version leaves plenty of legroom behind himself. People tend to sit a bit further away in the automatic version while those who sit closer to the wheel leave limo-like space for passengers in the back.

The boot is pretty huge, with a recessed bin at the side that can keep bottles or cartons from rolling or sliding around. A capacious covered bin between the front seats also has a removable coin tray. Handy.

While the 2.2-litre diesel is a miracle of modern technology for low emissions, it could do with more soundproofing. It grumbles and growls away, but not unpleasantly.

It does drive sweetly, however, with a marvellous gearbox inspired by the MX-5 sports car's and body control that sits between the sporty and the comfortable.

It grips like a limpet, feels instantly driver-friendly and the only factor that takes some getting used to is on the manual petrol models, which have springy clutches and such instant throttle response it can be hard to be really smooth when setting off.

Worth noting is the redesigned MZD system control layout, which works a treat. The system is possibly the most intuitive and capable you'll find anywhere in car-dom, quickly leading you to the options and sub-menus that you want.

At the top end of the range the CX-5 gets expensive. It's more spacious than some of its big-selling rivals, though, so the price tag isn't without justification.

The rubberised finish of some interior surfaces is a bit utilitarian for a car of this price, but the high-riding Mazda's attributes lie elsewhere. It feels like solid value for money in the middle of the range.

The fluency with which it drives, relative to its more straight-laced rivals, is a selling point. It's also a bit of a looker and comes complete with a towering driving position, lots of legroom for five and a boot big enough to create echoes.

It's a family car, then, but one for those who take pride in their choice and want something they can consciously enjoy owning.

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

KANE'S JOY AT ENGLAND CALL

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HARRY KANE revealed his delight after celebrating his call-up to the England squad by scoring his first Premier League hat-trick in Tottenham Hotspur's thrilling 4-3 victory over Leicester City on Saturday.

Last week saw England manager Roy Hodgson name Kane in the senior squad for the first time ahead of the forthcoming internationals against Lithuania and Italy, and the young striker showed exactly why he was called up by scoring three times – taking his tally for the season up to 29 in all competitions – as Spurs finally managed to see off the challenge of basement side Leicester at White Hart Lane.

"I'm delighted to score the hat-trick but the most important thing was to get the win," he said. "Credit to Leicester because they never gave up, and we didn't expect anything less because they are fighting for their lives at the bottom of the table."

"We had a few chances at 2-0 when we could have put the game to bed but we didn't take them and Leicester came back and punished us."

"It's always tough to give away the lead when you have been 2-0 up, to get hauled back and then you have to find that extra gear again but we found that gear and we're delighted to win the match."

"We all know the Manchester United defeat was a poor game, there was no hiding from that, but it's about how you react. We proved we've got a great bunch of lads and have come back with a great win."

Kane added: "I'm delighted to get my first Premier League hat-trick and hopefully the goals and the wins will keep coming. We have a great squad and want to get far up the table."

"I'm loving every minute, going out there and playing with my mates, scoring goals. That's when you're confident and that's how I feel. It's all come thick and fast, but I've prepared myself to be ready. I'm taking the opportunity and want to keep it going."

"I can't wait to play for England. It's been a dream to be called up and I want to go and play. There's great competition for places but hopefully I can do my best and see what happens."

However, while delighted with Saturday's win, head coach Mauricio Pochettino admitted that he did have some concerns about their performance.

"It was important to get the three points and to come back in a positive way after the defeat against Manchester United," he said. "I'm happy with the win."

"We need to analyse the game and take the positives but we also need to improve because we suffered so much."

"At 2-0 we believed the game was finished. It's about experience. I think we had some good moments but we conceded three goals and that's too much at home, so we need to improve defensively."

In the goals: Harry Kane scored his first Premier League hat-trick in Tottenham's win against Leicester

Griffiths snatches victory for Borough

LEROY GRIFFITHS struck a dramatic last-gasp winner as Haringey Borough edged to a 3-2 victory at home to tenants Greenhouse London in the Essex Senior League on Saturday.

Borough had broken the deadlock on 29 minutes when Dean Fenton's 25-yard free-kick was only parried by the visiting keeper and Jonathan Constant reacted quickest by smashing the loose ball into the net.

But Greenhouse got back on level terms on the stroke of the interval as a free-kick was swung in from the right and fell to Hamza Sadouk, who gave keeper Ashley Harris no chance as he smashed the ball home from close range.

The hosts went back on the attack at the start of the second half and retook the lead on 55 minutes when Jorge Djassi-Sambu scored at the end of a goalmouth scramble.

Little was created in the way of clear-cut openings after this and it looked as if Borough would ease to victory until, with the game entering stoppage time, Harris lost the ball under pressure and James Anderson was on hand to fire in the equaliser for the visitors.

However, the hosts were not to be denied and they went on to snatch the win three minutes later when Anthony McDonald – making his first appearance after several weeks out injured – delivered a cross from the left which the onrushing Griffiths met with a diving header into the net.

Meanwhile, Borough also needed a late goal to see off Ilford's challenge in the second round of the League Cup as they edged to a 1-0 win on Tuesday last week.

An uneventful first half was followed by a more lively second period which saw tempers boil over on several occasions.

Ilford were reduced to ten men with 15 minutes remaining and Borough took advantage of this by scoring the decisive goal in the 84th-minute – Tashan Bradshaw-Brown blasting home following a corner.

Haringey Borough visit Bowers and Pitsea tomorrow (7.45pm) before hosting Hullbridge Sports on Saturday (3pm).

Coleman takes charge of the Skolars

FORMER player Jermaine Coleman has been appointed as the new head coach of rugby league side London Skolars.

The Skolars had been searching for a replacement for Joe Mbu – who was sacked earlier this month following a dreadful start to the season – and they confirmed last week that Coleman had been chosen to take charge.

Coleman made 116 appearances for the Skolars between 2004 and 2011 during a 13-year professional career which also saw him play for Gateshead, York, Hunslet and Hemel Stags – where he had been working as assistant coach.

"I am very excited to be coming back to the Skolars as head coach," he said. "A head coach role was the next step for me and I can't think of anywhere better to take it on than here."

"It's a great club which has a terrific future, especially around the facilities development that is ongoing and the junior development."

"I also think that the club has built a unique commercial platform together with the Capital Challenge match against Wigan, the London clash against the Broncos and the Friday night Lights game towards the end of the season. These are all marquee events that coaches and players want to be involved in."

Skolars chief executive Hector McNeil added: "I am very pleased that Jermaine has agreed to rejoin the club. He has extensive knowledge at this level of rugby and has been instrumental in Hemel Stags' recent success."

"He is based locally and, having played at the club for so long, has always had the Skolars close to his heart. He also knows many of the players having either played with or coached them."

"I expect Jermaine will bring a breath of fresh air to the club and get us back on track. He comes at an important time and the appointment will also add great interest to the derby against Hemel on the opening day of the league season."

"I am sure that this will add a bit of spice to proceedings and I would encourage fans to make their way down to what should be a great game."
